The speaker explained his position in the present politics of the state as far as the two factions are concerned and told of his support of Ex-Gov. Col. L. Blease during the past two campaigns and of his being discussed reports which were said to be current in regard to his vote on the ten hour labor law in the house in 1901. Mr. Dominick stated that he had voted against the bill and gave his reasons for so doing. He stated that just previous to the introduction of this bill both sides had agreed to what was known as the "Sixty-Four Hour" law, and that during the session frequent petitions had come in asking that the bill be killed. In this connection he also paid a tribute to the late Joshua W. Ashley and said that it was by his influence that the bill had been killed.

Mr. Dominick also discussed the importance of the south from a national standpoint, its wealth in manufactures and agriculture and stated that it needed able men in the halls of congress in order that it might be given more attention.

Last night Mr. Dominick stated that he had not mapped out the details of his campaign but that he would be active from now on and that it would be conducted on the same high plane that it had been two years ago.

GOLF HARD BIT BY WAR IN ENGLAND

Caddies Can't Be Had—Likely Employ Women

London, June 2.—The war has made great inroads on the membership and income of most of the golf clubs in England, and the result has been that for a long time the labor employed has been reduced to a minimum. Some clubs have disbanded and the land broken up and turned to agricultural use. Most of the professionals, their assistants and the male staff have either gone to the front or are ineligible for military service. Caddies, as far as many clubs are concerned, have ceased to exist.

It is expected that the experiment will be made of employing women as green keepers, and for indoor work in the club houses.
